tl;dr: Equally frustrating and boring. Do not play.

It is neither healthy nor wise for your player, when playing your game, to at any point think, "Oh dear god there's more." Nor is it healthy or wise for your player, when still in the middle of playing said game, takes time out of their gameplay to begin writing a very scathing review of said game. In "Season Match", the player is at the mercy of a physics engine so wonky, even Gordon Freeman wouldn't be able to make as see-saw out of it. Too many levels depend on the player being able to navigate a herd of gems through a narrow passage, and this is practically impossible between the unpredictable falling patterns of said gems and the unreliable rng creating more gems in an order that throws all strategy out the window. I was able to beat several levels just by furiously clicking around, as the gameplay is artificially lengthened by arbitrary goals of clearing X number of gems. The powerups are useless. The game doesn't even take the time to explain what they do and you can only refill your powerups on certain levels. Just used the magic wand? Too bad! This level only refills the dagger you never use. But wait! There's also gold you can collect and purchase refills for your powerups. Again, the game never tells you that you can do this, and I only found out through a session of random clicking when I was bored. And speaking of never telling you anything, there is no story. The game will make you believe there is, but three frames of animation, character stills, and four paragraphs of text do not a story make. As I crawl closer to the end of the game, all I can think of is that this is babby's first programming. It feels so cheaply made and thrown out onto the market as quickly as possible without any consideration of whether or not it's "good". The only silver lining I can find is that it'll make my achievement stats go up. Woo.. Loved it!! Riders of Asgard is a fun, quirky game that certainly filled the house with gales of laughter and many "Aaaargh" as I crashed. The graphics are so vivid, bright, crisp and detailed which leads to an overall amazing experience. Sometimes I caught myself looking at the scenery instead of concentrating on the tricks I was trying to pull off!

The music is vibey , fun and quirky, fitting in nicely the overall theme of the game.

I'm not usually one for these types of games, but I found it completely addictive. I was determined to pull off one manoeuvre, and then the next ... and the next ... I love how you aren't limited to just one track and doing the same thing over and over again, which just adds to the complexity and depth of the game.

Buy it now!. My first ever video game, it's as good as I remember. First of: the game title is the best thing I've ever seen on Steam. :D

It was a funny, short story and I liked the fact that it had more than one ending. Kind of missed the fighting but it wouldn't have fitted the story I guess. I thought the secret in the beginning of the game at the graveyard was really nice. Characters are also great, especially the names. :D. Monumental failure feels like the right Mario Party games were assembled in a huge chaoticly fun experience. It's the right game for playing with children and adults alike in couch multiplayer sessions.

It is certain you will have a good laugh whenever you finish building a monument, if you are looking for to have crazy fun times with your friends this is the right title!

LEVEL ONE. GAME OVER.
LEVEL ONE. GAME OVER.
LEVEL ONE. GAME OVER.

...

LEVEL ONE. GAME OVER.

ACHIEVEMENT UNLOCKED, LEVEL ONE.. From the videos i thought it was like a remake of motocross madness but no..

The physics and controls are not fun at all. It doesn't feel like we are controlling a bike but a tank that drives very fast. Who knows maybe the dev manage to rework those parts? (as it's pretty new)

Right now i don't recommend this game. The art is just simple but so beautiful ans subtle.

The puzzle is fun but really hard.

And it has so many levels of well designed puzzle.

One of the best pure puzzle games that I've ever played.. WOW I LOVE THIS GAME.

Its not finished, its not perfect, but my lord its amazing.

Im hopeful for more and more content plus a way of making things a little more intuitive along with fixing the issue of things not building due to a lack of being in a perfect spot

BUT its early access, i can put up with all that for the game weve got so far, KUDOS , PLEASE keep going with this, it has GOTY Potential. This game sucks, the controls feel really stiff and the tips that appear only help a little or nothing.. This game suffers from a very simple design flaw. In the game there are challenges, and certain stats need to be a specific level in order to get through it without losing health. For example your strength stat might need to be at 20 in order to push an annoying troll into a fire. Only one problem, your stats need to be extremely high for every one of these challenges.

So unless you devote every single choice you make to advancing a couple of certain skills, you'll fail. It's not an autmatic failure, which is good, but eventually you'll run out of health. And even if you do keep improving certain skills, sometimes it won't even give you an option to use them, and thus, you'll lose even more health. I really wanted to like this game, but I'm afraid it forces you to keep improving the same skill over and over again, which makes for a very limited experience.

Story's good, but that's about it I'm afraid.. Is a good game, like the rest in the series.. It's a nice game that reminds me of those old flash games. Very nice.
