The screenshot shows the Nuendo 5.5 interface. At the top, there are controls for "Insert pause 1.0 seconds", "Insert breath", "Emphasis point", and "Clear words". Below this are three waveform tracks: "Speech - Ben", "Speech - Bettye", and "Music Waveform" (labeled "Aphex Twin - Jynweythek Ylow"). A "Timeline View" is visible at the bottom left. The "Transcript View" is the central focus, showing dialogue between "Ben" and "Bettye". Ben's transcript includes: "they move the there. You know what I mean?". Bettye's transcript includes: "Yeah, but, look at, look at the entire record industry. I finally found someone who believes in me, a record company who has faith in me and the whole record industry has crashed. It's, it's incredible. I meant that we have a thing that we associate with me called buzzard luck and it seems like it's, it's just perpetual. No matter how, how good things get. They would if they had to come on behind him. He, um, really just, um, I really didn't know him that well, it was just, um, maybe a month into my career, so I, I, everything that was happening to me was a first, and I was in a, a, Miami, Florida, in, in 1962, 3. And, um, up talking, and I would never, no, to, had!". A "Music library" panel on the right lists songs: Aphex Twin (Jynweythek Ylow), Bexar Bexar (Aidas), and Ernest Gonzales (Etchasketch Trees). A "Local Music Library" button is at the bottom right. Vertical labels "Speech Library" and "Music Browser" are on the far right edge.
